

THE TIWI OF MELVILLE AND BATHURST ISLANDS

179

The territory of the Tiklanila is roughly contained in the area in the south of Bathurst Island, south of Point Hurd and west of Mukambrimo, which is a river about eight miles to the west of the mission station. In this area, roughly about two hundred square miles, there are a number of districts with specific names. Anyone familiar with the Australian blackfellow knows how certain districts are given certain names, and although no native can tell the exact boundaries, everyone in the tribe knows when he has come into one of these districts and when he has left it. The principle of differentiation of these areas seems to be upon the basis of the physical aspect of the country, a valley for example having a distinct name from either set of hills surrounding it, a plain being distinguished from a thickly-wooded piece of bushland on its margin, and so on.

These districts play an important part in Tiwi land ownership. Certain districts are not owned by the horde as a whole, but by a single family of that horde. Thus in the horde we are considering, Tagio, the extensive district in the extreme south-western corner of the island around Cape Fouveroy, is owned by a single set of men, all of whom are the son's sons of Mikidjimirla, a man who as far as can be judged died about 1870-1880. The basis of their title is the fact that Mikidjimirla died and was buried in the district, hence all the game and fruit in Tagio belong to them, and cannot be hunted or collected by anyone else without their consent.

The question immediately arises as to whether the mere burial of a man in a district gives his heirs property rights in that district. The Tiwi answer is that it always does if the man was sufficiently important. The man in question here, Mikidjimirla, was from all accounts one who left a deep impression on the society of his time both by his personality and by his prowess in warfare. More than that he left his mark on following generations by the number of children he had. At the present time, there are nine men, all grandchildren of Mikidjimirla, in whom the hunting and fruit-collecting rights of Tagio are vested, and these men and their families normally camp in Tagio and deny the right of other Tiklanila families to hunt there. This group has a solidarity of its own which is expressed by a name Tajianwila, which is one of the alternative horde-names. It should be noted in this connection that the Tiwi name for father's father is amini, and the members of this group will frequently
